"Our Landlord served notice on us to vacate the offices we had occupied for over 10 years, however, we quickly found alternative offices and were luckily introduced to Matt Butcher at Talis Projects. The challenge was to design and fit out two office shells to our exacting standards including incorporating a number of innovative features to create a contemporary bespoke office environment. Matt not only met this challenge and delivered the project, including all new furniture, to a very tight deadline and within our budget but also without losing his cool once. Matt remained calm throughout the process even when dealing with his own staff and sub-contractors, and his professionalism, commitment and good humour resulted in a highly successful project, which, after the initial shock of having to relocate, became a very enjoyable experience for those concerned."
